

Home > Style > Travel

GEARING UP

Print Email Share
0 Comments

Bed in a backpack

Article Launched: 09/21/2008 12:30:00 AM MDT

Children bound for a camping trip, sleepover or corner of their parents' hotel room can now bring their own comfy bed — on their backs. The Aero Sport Overnighter is a lightweight but sturdy inflatable bed that comes rolled up in its own matching backpack. A battery-operated pump (four D-cell batteries not included) inflates the bed to a well-cushioned 7 inches thick in about 60 seconds. The bed has a soft flocked surface and fits standard twin sheets. The backpack has pockets for other gear, and makes a nice extra bag on its own. Aero Sport Overnighter in blue (05111) or purple (05311), $60, thinkaero.com, 888-462-4468.

(Special to The Denver Post)

Judi Dash, Gear & Gadgets Syndicate

GEARING UP

Bed in a backpack

Article Launched: 09/21/2008 12:30:00 AM MDT

Children bound for a camping trip, sleepover or corner of their parents' hotel room can now bring their own comfy bed – on their backs. The Aero Sport Overnighter is a lightweight but study inflatable bed that comes rolled up in its own matching backpack. A battery-operated pump (four D-cell batteries not included) inflates the bed to a well-cushioned 7 inches thick in about 60 seconds. The bed has a soft flocked surface and fits standard twin sheets. The backpack has pockets for other gear, and makes a nice extra back on its own. Aero Sport Overnighter in blue (05111) or purple (05311), $60, thinkaero.com, 888-462-4468.

Judi Dash, Gear & Gadgets Syndicate